ADVANCING MARSHALL COUNTY

ONE VISION...

ONE VOICE

2021-2025

MARSHALL COUNTY
ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT COUNCIL
Start with Why

Few would argue that Marshall County, being located at the nexus point of Huntsville, Birmingham, Chattanooga, Nashville and Atlanta, is positioned well for positive economic development impact. The county contains industrial parks and a mix of manufacturing, service industries, retail, medical and financial institutions that provide for growth. Add to that the fact Marshall County is an outdoor lover’s dream with its natural beauty, hunting and fishing, sailing and boating, public parks, camping areas, mountain biking and walking trails and you have a strong foundation for increasing economic development growth.

With this positioning in mind, as volunteer leaders for the Marshall County Economic Development Council (MCEDC), we have focused over the last several months on ensuring that the “WHY” of the MCEDC organization is being carried out. The reason WHY we exist, and our WHY mission can be boiled down to one word—JOBS! More jobs, sustainable jobs, higher paying jobs. Creating and building a job marketplace that encourages our brightest and best current and future workers to live and work right here in Marshall County and attracts others from outside the county to join them.

To this end, the current MCEDC volunteer board leadership and professional staff determined that now was the time to reassess, reenergize and expand our MCEDC programming and deliverables—that the MCEDC needs to be a “solution bringer” in addressing the issues that have a “chilling effect” on economic development in Marshall County. We were determined not to make final program initiative decisions in an internal vacuum, so to provide guidance as to the “art of the possible” we engaged the services of a nationally recognized firm—Funding Solutions based in Austin, Texas—whose principals have helped design the strategies and then successfully raised the funding for new five-year plans of work for over a dozen organizations in Alabama alone.

The Funding Solutions partners were authorized to make over 60 one-on-one in-person or Zoom interviews with industry, business, political and other community leaders to determine what programs and initiatives the community feels are important for the MCEDC to include in its new five-year plan. The resulting initiatives contained in this document are a direct result of this input we received from leadership throughout Marshall County.

On the following pages you will find the details of our new Advancing Marshall County—One Vision, One Voice plan. This five-year plan includes four program of work initiatives, each with a specific mission, detailed objectives and expected outcomes, and led by top task team initiative community leaders.

We invite you to join with us to create a well-planned and well-implemented future for existing and new industry and businesses by solving problems impeding economic development growth and discovering more opportunities to raise the quality of life for all Marshall County citizens by leading/partnering with organizations of like mind in crafting the best fundamental building blocks needed for success—a good job and workers prepared and ready to fill them!

Message from Campaign Co-Chairs

Sen. Clay Scofield
and George Kappler

Positive economic growth and community well-being always requires long-term strategy combined with bold approaches and the leadership team to make it happen.

The Marshall County Economic Development Council has a long-standing record of industry/business recruitment and helping existing industry/businesses to grow and thrive. This new five-year plan Advancing Marshall County—One Vision, One Voice lays out a major expansion of the leading and partnering outreach of the MCEDC as a direct result of input received from a broad spectrum of one-on-one leadership interviews conducted throughout all of Marshall County.

Based on the comments received, the board and staff leadership of MCEDC has chosen to focus on four specific initiatives deemed critical to economic growth in Marshall County: (1) Industry/Business Driven Workforce Development Coalition; (2) New Industry/Business Recruitment; (3) Existing Industry/Business Retention and Expansion; (4) Industry/Business Advocacy and Public Policy. In executing these initiatives the MCEDC will be partnering with the entire academic community, municipal government and numerous other organizations of like-mind throughout Marshall County—all working together jointly to bring solutions “to the table”.

We co-chairs have been personally involved in the preparation of this new five-year plan. We are excited about and committed to both the process and the program of work outlined and are confident that you, along with the many other public and private sector leaders who are already on-board, will recognize the vital importance of investing in the implementation of these initiatives and working together to make Marshall County all it can and should be!

The most effective economic development organizations make advocating for the health and vitality of industry and business and job creation a top priority. When you unify the ‘voices of industry and business’ regarding issues that have a ‘chilling effect’ on industry and business growth and well-being you create a collective ‘shout’ that is heard by decision makers at all levels of government.

Message from your
MCEDC Board and Staff Leadership

Marshall County has come a long way from its days being known for Bondo Alley and outlet malls. Today, advanced manufacturing and tourism drive our vibrant economy.

Throughout this time the Marshall County Economic Development Council has worked hard to help facilitate this growth. By working to recruit new businesses, assist existing industries in their growth strategies, and promoting pro-business and pro-workforce development policies with local leadership, the MCEDC has been at the forefront of helping to direct much of the growth this county has seen in the past two decades.

The leadership of the MCEDC, while recognizing the achievements we have made, felt in 2020 that it was time to assess our mission and take the organization to the next level. That has led to the formation of our new initiative, Advancing Marshall County—One Vision, One Voice.

After receiving input from leaders in our business community, concerns for our future economic stability were clear. With an unemployment rate that hovers around 3% companies have to fight to find talented workers. Traffic concerns, particularly along US 431, continue to be an impediment to economic development. And lack of adequate, affordable housing also continues to stunt growth in the area. These, and other issues cited by leadership, will be addressed as we move forward with this new initiative.

In the preceding pages you have seen the details of this five-year plan. We will begin Advancing Marshall County—One Vision, One Voice in 2021. The five-year plan includes four Program of Work Initiatives, each with a specific mission, detailed objectives and measurable outcomes.

Led by some of the top business leaders in Marshall County, this five-year initiative will create collaborative task force teams to address and bring solutions for issues we face as a county. This will not be an effort that will be conducted in a vacuum, but will, by the end of five years, have a tremendous impact on the issues that have been identified as impediments to continued growth.

We invite you to join in with us to help create a well-planned future for existing and new businesses to discover more opportunities and raise the quality of life for all of Marshall County's local residents by creating the best environment for businesses and jobs to flourish!
